Cue & Curtain Fights Storm, Jinx, Scarcity Of Irishmen

Rain Damages Scenery;
Dialect Dropped From
Famed Comedy

"Show Must Go On", Friday and Saturday at Wardman

Cue and Curtain's cast of 13, its scene painting staff of four and its Marvin Beers, director, extraordinary, were muttering "the show must go on" through their teeth today as they battled toward the close of their first season together Friday and Saturday night when they will play "Is Life Worth Living," a three-act Irish comedy at Wardman Park Theatre.

They were battling against most of the jinx that, according to legend, are supposed to close the show in a forlorn, country "tank town." There was the usual rain storm, stage superstition and then the little problem of making an entire cast of healthy American college boys and girls speak with a single Erin accent that might sound native to Irish, Ireland.

Storm Damages Scenery
Sunday's violent rain storm lashed at the partly painted scenery in the club's workshop in Building N and added an entire day's work to an already crowded schedule, according to Joseph Rubenstein, the scene painter who moved the material out of an inch-deep puddle. Water on the floor also prevented work yesterday which added to the staff's troubles.

Sensing that some one must have been whistling in the dressing room or some such, Director Beers moved to get the jump on the hoodoo and added a few non-descript Irish citizens to the street scene just to avoid the number 13 in the list of characters.

The dialect problem was solved when the directors decided that Lennox Robinson's renowned drama would probably suffer less by being played completely in English, the best that could be mustered, than in 13 varieties of Irish in a Nebraska, Brooklyn, Alabama and Washington.

Maxine Kahn, Eva Kailey and Sue Slater are co-stars in the women's triple lead and Milton Freedman, Austin Gattis and Edward Stevings play the principal men's parts.

Others in the cast are: Robert Walker, Earl Burton, Tom Wyde, Ben Candland, Bill McCallum, Ruth Brewer, and Elizabeth Griswold.

Before, during intermissions and after the drama, Jack Ehrmantraut, Fiesta composer, will entertain with music from the Fiesta musical comedy "Davy". He will play "Forgotten Melody", "Way Up High and Way Down Low", "Unfortunate I'm in Love with You", "Some Night in June", and "What Price Education".

Class Visits Power Plants

Engineering Students Will Inspect Two Sites
Friday

Engineering students in Prof. William F. Roesser's class in hydro-electric engineering and other students and engineers will visit the Safe Harbor and Conowingo water power plants Friday.

Safe Harbor is of particular interest locally because it is interconnected with the system of the Potomac Electric Power Co., and with the Baltimore utility system.

The completion of the Safe Harbor plant will mark the realization of plans begun about 1900 to utilize the 227 foot drop in the level of the Susquehanna River, between Columbia, Pa., and the Chesapeake Bay, a distance of about 40 miles.

When completed, the Safe Harbor will have an installed capacity of 510,000 h.p. The overall length of the dam and power house is 5,000 feet. The power plant structure is of reinforced concrete and the superstructure is of brick and tile. The dam is of reinforced concrete.

Petitions Due Fri. In Govt. Election

Friday at 5 p. m. has been set as the deadline for petition to candidates for the School of Government Council, Dean Warren R. West announced.

Petitions must be signed by 10 students registered in the School, Dean West said.

The election will be held May 13. A council of three will be elected, one of whom will represent the school on the Student Council.

Professors and Students Attend Library Meeting

Dr. Alfred F. Schmidt, director of the Division of Library Science, Miss Elizabeth A. Lathrop, assistant professor of library science, and a number of library science students will attend a joint meeting of the George Washington Library Science Alumni Association and the Alumni Club of Richmond, Thursday, May 14, at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond.

Why Eddie! Can You Read?

It is a shocking scene, isn't it? Eddie Twobig (Edward Stevingson in the University records) has gone intellectual. He is reading Turgenev. What's that? Well, of course, we could explain, but then you wouldn't enjoy the show. Eva Kailey, Ruth Brewer, Milton Freedman, and Sue Slater (left to right) complete this scene from Cue and Curtain's "Is Life Worth Living" to be presented at Wardman Park Theatre Friday and Saturday.

Fiesta Gives Concessions Assignments

Booths of 17 Groups to Comprise "International Village"

Assignments of 17 different booths to sororities and fraternities were made last Friday for "International Village", the Fiesta's group of concession and entertainment booths, to be located between the Comptroller's office and Columbian House for the Fiesta, May 14, 15, and 16.

Groups will all be properly outfitted in dress and booth design to conform to the country they purport to represent.

The organizations, booths, and countries assigned, so far as completed, follow in order:
Ice cream and Eskimo pie stand, Zeta Tau Alpha, Alaska; nail driving, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Canada; hot dogs and hamburgers, Phi Mu, Oriental; root beer, Delta Zeta, Germany; Hoopla, Chi Omega, Hawaii; peanuts and popcorn, Alpha Delta Theta, Holland.

Popcorn, cigarettes, Phi Sigma Sigma, Oriental; Bingo, Phi Alpha, America; milk bottle game, Kappa Alpha, Switzerland; golf, Delta Tau Delta, Scotland; soft drinks, Alpha Delta Phi, Oriental; variety stand, Pi Beta Phi, Mexican; jewelry booth, Sigma Chi, Oriental; prize land, Tau Epsilon Phi; bucket game, Phi Epsilon Pi; and poker game, Phi Sigma Kappa.

Four new concessions are being introduced this year. They are Spot-the-Spot, the bucket game, the golf game, and the jewelry booth. Fraternities will assume one-half the cost of constructing fronts and buying paint for their booths. Two prizes are offered, one for the best decorated booth and the other for that bringing in the most money.

The Fiesta store room moved into its new offices this week in the basement of the Comptroller's office, adjoining the Fiesta grounds, so that the stock will be handy to the work.

Buchanan Leads Alpha Kappa Psi Tax Discussion

Dr. William Gordon Buchanan, member of the firm of Councilor and Buchanan, and professor of accounting at Georgetown University, will lead a discussion of "The New Surplus Tax Bill" at the regular meeting of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional fraternity in commerce, in the Theta Delta Chi House, 1830 I St., Wednesday night, at 8:30 p. m.

Dr. Buchanan is actively engaged in public accounting and can thus give added information as to its effect on corporation surpluses. He has spoken to Alpha Kappa Psi once before this year.

Drastic Policy Changes Mark Party Caucuses

Drastic change of policy marked the actions of the Right and Left Parties in their caucuses last week. Several Centrists "took a walk" to the Right Party ballroom to assist the latter in a reorganization under the name of the "Constitutional Liberals".

According to party leaders of the Right, the proposed new party "seeks to include those Centrists of mildly conservative views who have resented the Center Party's having fallen too much under the influence of the Left".

The new name will have to be approved by the Executive Council of the Union before it can be officially adopted by the party. According to unofficial statements by members of the Center and Left there is decided opposition to the change of name. The Council is expected to meet following the

Hatchet Takes 2 Places in News, Editorial Contests

The Hatchet received second place honors in the editorial contest and third place in the news contest at the spring convention of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association held Friday and Saturday at the University of Delaware in Newark, Del.

The Carnegie Foundation obtained third place for its editorial page and the Gettysburgian placed fourth for news and make-up.

David E. Hepford, editor of the Dickinsonian, was elected president. Harry C. Archer of the Lehigh Brown and White was elected vice president, and Priscilla Alden of West Chester Teachers College was chosen secretary of the I. N. A. The Hatchet was represented at the convention by Margaret Davis, Terrie Egan, Charles Hallam, Bernard Holden, and Robert Howell.

The University chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers will be host to delegates of six other universities at the first inter-campus conference of student chapters, Thursday.

Dr. D. W. Mead, national president of the society, will be present at the opening of the conference at 10 a. m. in Corcoran 10, and will be one of the speakers at the banquet in the evening.

The University of Maryland, Johns Hopkins University, University of Virginia, Catholic University, Virginia Military Institute, and Polytechnic Institute will be represented.

Luncheon will be served in Corcoran 11 at 12 o'clock after which the engineers will visit some of the new government buildings, the Sewage Treatment Plant, and the Navy Yard.

The day will close with a banquet at Wesley Hall, 1703 K St., at 6:30 p. m. Prof. Norman B. Ames will be toastmaster and Dr. Mead, Dean John R. Lapham, George O. Sanford, and George T. Seabury, national secretary of society will speak.

Films showing work on the Fort Peck, Boulder Dam, and Grand Coulee projects will be shown following the banquet.

Differences of opinion as to what should constitute the policy of Left Party members with regard to campus activity were thrashed out at the Left caucus Friday with the result that the body adopted two resolutions.

They were (1) that the will of the majority of the party should guide the party members in their activities on campus, and (2) that their activities should function wholly within the accepted restrictions of existing university regulations.

The Left Party will hold another caucus next Friday night in Corcoran Hall to elect officers.

Party officers for next year were elected at caucuses of the Right and Center Parties last week. Fred Brooks was elected chair-

Harmon Offers Half of Profits To Symphony

Brusloff's Orchestra Will Entertain During Interludes

Dr. Robert Harmon, director of the Glee Club, announced yesterday that because of the ready cooperation which Dr. Hans Kindler has offered the club throughout the year, half the net profits of the concert will be donated to the National Symphony Orchestra fund. The concert will be given next Tuesday at the Willard Hotel.

The long wars between groups which have been characteristic of glee club concerts will be alleviated this year by musical interludes by Brusloff's orchestra, Dr. Harmon said yesterday.

A special feature of the program this year will be "Cherubic Host" from the "Holy City" by Gaul, sung by the women's glee club accompanied by Brusloff's string quartet and Alfred Manning, harpist of the Fox orchestra. The baritone solo will be sung by Robert Frederick Freund, soloist at St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Another addition to this year's concert program will be the tapping of outstanding junior men by Steel Gauntlet, honorary activities society for junior men.

"What with the ready response of patrons to letters sent to them containing tickets, and the fact that many of the members of both clubs have already sold more than their quota of 10 tickets, there is no reason why the concert should not draw an even larger audience than the record-breaking one of last year," student manager Dan Anderson said Sunday.

The glee club will sing to two audiences before the climax of their season Tuesday, Thursday night they will sing at a banquet at the Keystone Automobile Club at the Willard, and Sunday night the men's club will give a program at Arlington Hall School for Girls in collaboration with the glee club of that school.

Chemistry Contest Announced; Offers $50 Exam Prizes

Two contests for chemistry students have been announced, with prizes of $40 and $10 respectively.

The first is the Willie E. Fitch prize of $40, awarded annually to a senior student for the best general examination in chemistry. The examination for this award will be held May 22. All interested should leave their names with Prof. De Witt C. Knowles in Y-28, before May 20.

The other is an examination for the Sigma Kappa prize of $10. All students who have taken not more than Chemistry 11, 12, and 21 are eligible. Those desiring to take this examination should leave their names with Prof. Benjamin D. Van Evera in Y-38 or Dr. Naeser in Y-28 before May 25.

Faculty Women Plan May Fete

Malkus Presented With
Two Books in Recognition
Of His Services

Austen Roe, ex-president of the University band, received the Director's Cup for the year's most valuable bandman in the presence of more than 50 guests at the annual Band Banquet at Sholl's Cafeteria Wednesday night.

Sydney Cross, John Stevenson, Richard Schayer, and Sam Maciulla were elected president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and librarian, and David Oberlin was elected to the Student Council as music delegate for 1936-37 at the same time.

Malkus Given Books
The surprise of the evening came when Director Louis Malkus was presented with two books by the members of the band in recognition of his service. The books were "Victor Book on Symphonies" and a biography of Toscanini by John Stefan.

Max Farrington, assistant director of athletics, speaking on behalf of the Athletic Department, congratulated the band on the support it has given the University athletic contests, and bore a message from basketball coach Bill Reinhart requesting a band performance for every game next winter.

Captain William Stannard, ex-conductor of the United States Army Band, entertained the bandmen with anecdotes from his 35 years of band experience, and congratulated the University band on its success.

Awarding of keys to those who have served three years, and sweaters to those who have served one year, and a musical program starring Eleanor Boehs, Fred Tarris, and George McCauley completed the program.

Prof. Anna Pearl Cooper and Dean John R. Lapham represented the Faculty Music Committee at the dinner.

Howard Dies In Charlotte

Former Chemistry Instructor Succumbs After 2
Months' Illness

Dr. David Halbert Howard, an instructor in chemistry at the University, 1933-35, died in the Eye, Nose, and Throat Hospital, Charlotte, N. C., Apr. 26. He had been ill for nearly two months with mastoiditis, the result of complications following influenza.

Dr. Howard was graduated from the E. C. Glass High School in Lynchburg, Va., received his A. B. from Davidson College, and was nominated for a Rhodes Scholarship. Following graduation he took work in advanced chemistry at Cornell University, where he received his Ph. D. in 1933.

In 1935 Dr. Howard resigned his post at the University to accept a position as associate professor of chemistry at Davidson College, where he was teaching when taken ill.

He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Alpha Chi Sigma, and Gamma Sigma Epsilon honorary chemistry fraternity. At the time of his death he was secretary of the national organization and editor of the national journal of the latter fraternity.

Engineer Society Gives Annual Prize Tomorrow

Fiesta Shows Campus Film

"March of the Campus"
Depicts "Big Shots" in Typical Scenes

The "March of the Campus", motion picture of various campus personages, taken when the subjects were not aware of being photographed, and accumulated over a period of more than a year will be a special feature of the 1936 Fiesta.

The films will be shown three times nightly during the Fiesta in H-103. The will be a particular interest to those students who already know of the existence of the collection, and who have long awaited the time when photographer Charles Kiefer would release them.

Kiefer's collection includes numerous shots of campus "big shots" in characteristic poses and motions, and several feet of film of the recent general elections.

1936 Cherry Tree Is Still Available

Copies of the 1936 Cherry Tree may still be reserved by paying $1 down of $2 in full at the Publications Office, 2101 G St., the former site of the Fine Arts School, Helen Buntin, editor, said Sunday.

Orders will be taken up until the date of publication of the yearbook, later this month. The annual is now in the hands of the Benson Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn., for completion.

Will Students of Today Succeed As The Electorate of Tomorrow?

WHILE the number of 2,160 ballots cast in the student government elections last week was the largest ever polled at a campus election of the University, exceeding last year's record-breaking vote by about 250 ballots, there were approximately four thousand students who did not vote at all. This means that even with all the enthusiasm that was shown, which by itself is to be commended, only about one-third of the student body voted. As we know from observation, a part of the number that did vote, did so because they were cornered, and not because they were interested in or knew anything about the election, the candidates, or the function of the bodies whose members were being selected. A situation such as this is not confined to campus elections, but similar facts are prevalent in state and national elections.

But how can such a situation be remedied when, throughout the country, it is evident that at least a very large minority if not almost a majority of the citizens actually know very little about our government? Recently a legislator, in conversation with a Phi Beta Kappa man who was graduated from one of the leading universities of America, discovered how little many highly educated men know about the operation of the United States Government. Our government was criticized, and the statement was made that if it could not stand criticism, our government ought to fall. The young man was thoroughly versed in the Marxian theory and the operation of several European political bodies, but when questioned about simple fundamentals of our own political science, he was uninformed.

Does this incident depict the typical product of the American college? What do you know about the government under whose supervision you live? Do you know how many members there are in Congress; who the two Senators from your State are; if you come from a State; why there is a provision in the Constitution requiring that bills passed by Congress be sent to the President for his signature and what may be done if he should veto a bill; what a tariff is and why it is considered a necessity? If you, as a college student, are not acquainted with the simple factors of our government, then take advantage of the opportunity you have.

The student bodies of today will be a major part of the electorate and governing bodies of tomorrow. A government cannot be conducted according to the best interests and wishes of the people, unless the people themselves know something about the government, what is going on, and what should be done. Most of such a lack of knowledge is due to indifference, and the "what do I care!" attitude.

Yet the very people, who say they don't care are the complainers who attack forms, about which they know little or nothing, and who say they think the government should topple if it cannot do better. Will you go through the University and end up in this category?—W. S. C.

Athletic Department's Forward Step In Intramurals Deserves Praise

THE athletic department recently took a definite step forward in campus sports when it rendered a ruling prohibiting all varsity athletes from participation in intramural baseball. This marks the beginning of the fulfillment of a need which has been widely realized and advocated for some time, and the athletic department deserves commendation for its sagacity in making this advance. Though this rule has been instituted in baseball for this season merely to test it and to see if it will work, it is the intention of the athletic department to apply the rule to other intramural games and possibly to make it permanent for the whole intramural system if the rule proves sufficiently successful to warrant it.

The intramural athletic system is to provide an opportunity to take part in sports for the rank and file of the students who are not trained varsity sportsmen and who have no other means of enjoying such sports. In the past, when varsity men were permitted to try out for an intramural team, the average student had little chance in the tryout competition until all the varsity men who were eligible and wanted to play had received positions on the team, for of course the varsity men are usually far better. Under the restriction now in effect, this cannot occur. The students at large are offered the entire field, and this will undoubtedly result in a greater desire upon the part of the rank and file of the students to take part in intramurals.

Four good teams from the Schools of Engineering, Medicine, Law, and Pharmacy have been organized under the new plan. Two of the teams usually in the league, one from the School of Government and the other from the School of Education, have not yet been formed, because of the scarcity of men for tryouts, due probably to the size of the schools. However this will soon take care of itself, as all men in Junior and Columbian Colleges, other than varsity men, preparing themselves for any of the six schools mentioned may play on the respective teams.

Apparently the permanency of this new rule depends entirely upon the rank and file of the students—that is, whether or not they will be eager enough to participate in intramurals to form, maintain, and operate a justifiable number of teams in each sport without the aid of the varsity men to warrant continuance of the new rule.—W.S.C.

If The Senior Class Wishes To Give A Flag Pole, Why Does It Not Act?

LAST year the Senior Class, together with other members of the student body, presented the University with a flag pole as a token of appreciation to the University. This year it was proposed that the Senior Class donate a similar pole to fly the University Flag. All seniors have been solicited for contributions by letter from the Senior Council. The year is nearly over and the time to order the flag pole is approaching, but only a comparatively few seniors have made known their desire to contribute toward the pole. The Senior Council is being held in great suspense.

Do the Seniors want to give a flag pole to the University? If not, then the Senior Council, which adopted the plan, does not represent the sentiments of the Senior Class. If the majority of the members of the Class are not in favor of some gift, which would require only a small contribution on the part of each member, the spirit of the Class shows little enthusiasm for the institution soon to become its Alma-Mater.

Whether or not the Seniors want to give a flag pole, they might have replied to the letters of solicitation and made known their desires. They might have pledged a contribution to be paid at a definite subsequent date, if they did not wish to send the money earlier in the year, and yet did wish to aid in the project. Those who might not have liked the idea or who did not wish to have part in such a gift could have so stated and the Council would have at least known what to expect. The indifferent, apathetic course, though the intent be good, is indeed a careless, unbusinesslike manner, which often causes much anxiety and extra work on the part of someone else, and which many of us pursue too frequently.—W. S. C.

Don't Give Up In The Last Three Weeks Of School—Work Harder

WE are all familiar with the good advice that is offered at the opening of each semester about the necessity and advisability of studying hard from the first in order to gain a better knowledge of our studies and to receive a higher grade. If you did not take advantage of this suggestion or warning and are therefore far behind in much of your work you are probably now in a terrible dilemma. And right you should be, for there now remains only three more weeks of school before final examinations.

But this is no time to start worrying when you look back over the considerable parts of courses you have omitted until now. Most of us sit around and waste more time worrying about what we have to do in such a short time than it would take time in which to do it. And all this worry and fuss we make over it tends to unfit and distort our minds so we are not capable of doing our best at full speed.

Though cramming alone is not to be advocated, it is still not too late to make the grade. So buckle down to it now. Make certain what you have neglected to learn and pitch in to it, keeping your chin up and forcing yourself to have some interest in it, if you naturally have none.—W. S. C.

FLYING CHIPS

Cunningham, Running Well Behind His Ticket, Becomes "Most Defeated" Candidate for Council Presidency.

By Jimmie Haley

"SUPERLATIVE" is a good word to use in describing the Student Council elections last week.

This year's election, both campaigning and balloting, was marked by more planning, more electioneering, more high pressure, more actual expense, and more of everything else than ever before in the history of the Council. Also and as a result, more votes were cast than ever before in a Council election.

Furthermore, so far as the records show, never before did the defeated candidates lose by such wide margins.

Student Council voting, at least so far as the general officers are concerned, is usually very close. But this year the students of the University saw fit to turn back the defeated candidate for the presidency, Austin Cunningham, by giving his opponent, Ross Pope, a greater majority than any other successful candidate for the Council presidency has enjoyed in the last five years.

Last year Bourke Floyd won over Ross Pope—the same Ross Pope who beat Cunningham this year—by the narrow margin of 31 votes. The final count was 889 for Floyd against 858 for Pope.

Until last year the Council president had been elected within the Council itself, not by direct vote of the students. However, a comparison of the popular votes received by the man ultimately chosen and his nearest rival may be interesting.

In the election of 1934 Ted Pierson, who was later unanimously elected president of the Council, won over Ross Pope—the same Ross Pope who beat Cunningham this year—by a vote of 334 to 307 in the Junior College contest. In 1933 William Helvestine was elected president of the Council but he actually ran behind his rival in the Law School balloting, Bob Hitch topping him 222 to 209. Likewise in 1932, a scant 10 votes separated Elton Billings, later chosen president, from his opponent in the Law School, Jack Goode.

But this year Pope received 1,182 votes to Cunningham's 942, a difference of exactly 240. This makes another superlative—Cunningham becoming the "most defeated" candidate for the Council presidency.

It is also interesting, indeed significant, to note that Cunningham ran well behind his party ticket. The following table tells the story:

Progressive	Service	Diff.
President.....Pope.....	1,182 Cunningham.....	942 240
Vice Pres.....Smith.....	1,075 Bulow.....	940 120
Secretary.....Humphrey.....	1,132 Leane.....	946 106
Treasurer.....Brogen.....	1,122 Thomas.....	916 204

Why was not Cunningham able to keep pace with his ticket, I wonder? Was it that he was answering for the Floyd record? Or was the objection registered by the voters just an objection to Cunningham?

Milestones En Route

It always gives an editor a certain thrill to receive a letter from another editor, and similarly, it gives us something of a thrill to discuss today a former associate editor of a college newspaper, who is now registered in the University. The man to whom I refer is DICK LAWLOE, who was associate editor of Tufts Weekly in 1922-23.

Lawlor, who is connected with the Signal Corps of the War Department, is now completing his second year in the Law School, having entered in Sept., 1934.

He had quite an unusual career on the Tufts Weekly. He did not start in as a cub reporter and work up through the ranks to associate editor, as one would suppose, but rather got his editorial post as a result of substitute work he did during his Junior year in college. During that time he wrote most of the editorials for the paper, although not a member of the staff.

While on the editorial board, which usually consisted of six to 10 members, he was interested particularly in the Engineering School and in general politics.

Tufts Weekly at the time Lawlor was connected with it had a rather unique organization. Editors were usually in their Junior year at college and the next year they became associate editors.

The Weekly was tabloid style and carried, in addition to numerous photographs, several student-drawn comic strips. All cuts and engravings were made in a plant which the school operated in connection with the Weekly.

ROBERT T. BARBER began in 1929 and completed in 1933 a career as a sailor and is now working his way through the University by driving a bus.

He started out by sailing to the West Coast through the Panama Canal. On his second trip the ship's officers decided not to come back and Barber stayed in Seattle for two months during which time he determined to see China.

He got a job on the Dollar Line going to the Orient, where he touched port at Yokohama and Kobe in Japan and Shanghai and Hongkong in China. Hongkong, he said, is the prettiest port he has ever seen.

On the way home Barber became ill and left the ship at Manila in the Philippines, 10,000 miles away from home. When he finally reached Seattle he bought a 1919 Chevrolet for $25 and in eight days, during two of which he was laid up for repairs, Barber drove from Seattle to Washington.

In 1931 and 1932 Barber made trips to Antwerp.

NEWS IN RETROSPECT

The Too Obvious Ballot-Box Stuffing Should Be Curbed; Two Suggestions As To Possible Remedies Are Made; Certain It Is That Action Should Be Taken.

By Robert Howell

Analysis of last week's general elections which swept the Progressive Party into power with the largest majority—that has been given any group on this campus in recent years, falls to show any specific reasons why the reaction was so marked against the party which had been in power.

No one has been able to point to a single feature of the campaign which could have been responsible for the nearly 250 vote majority held by Ross Pope over Austin Cunningham, his opponent for president of the Student Council.

One thing which was evident at the polls, however, was the number of illegal votes which were cast by both sides. One estimator went as high as to say 500 such votes were cast. The average was about 200.

These votes, if all had been spotted and eliminated, could hardly be expected to change the results, but the fact remains that some action should be taken to at least curb the number of ballots cast by persons other than he whose name appeared on the envelopes.

Two suggestions have been made in this connection.

One is the use of activities books with pictures, just as is done in athletic contests. The other is to have a list of all students, with pictures, name of school, and other pertinent information prepared and made available at all polling places.

There are arguments, of course, pro and con both systems. The activities books could be worked in exactly the same manner as at athletic contests. One ticket could be designated as the voting ticket and could be torn out when the student casts his ballot.

Disadvantages are that it discourages balloting by making it harder for individual students to vote since they must have their activities books with them at the polls.

It seems, however, that 1,000 votes cast by people who are interested and want to vote would give as much indication of student preference as 1,000 such votes and 1,000 others which were voted simply because party workers insisted that the student should vote and told him how.

The other system presupposes that students will be limited as to the precincts at which they can vote. That is, law students must vote at the Law School, medical students must vote at the Medical School, and so on.

It will entail checking the list for every student as he comes in to vote and marking his name off the list.

Principal weaknesses of both plans, of course, would come through tendencies of attendants at the polls to look the other way or to approve identification of fellow party members who are coming through for their second, third, or fourth vote.

Inasmuch as impartial poll attendants would probably not be available, this is one weakness which can not be avoided.

Nevertheless, many of the votes which were illicitly cast could have been eliminated by such a system. That very few students voted their

POINT OF VIEW

Need for Practical Politics in Elections Seen; Elimination of Tammany Methods Might Not Deduct From Interest in Campaigning.

By Lee Roark

The air being still filled with the smoke of political battle, I may be excused, I hope, for a post mortem on the political campaign. And, in passing, express the opinion that there seems to be a crying need for practical politics in said elections, and to offer the suggestion that lighter doses of mud-smeared might not detract from the excitement of the campaign.

When the system of party organization was developed last year, with the birth of the Progressives and the Service, there was widespread criticism of what might possibly turn into a harbinger of ill will and factionalism that would not be forgotten in the year ahead.

The system has undoubtedly afforded a means of better organized campaigns, if numbers of people campaigning is any indication. But the sort of campaign we have just witnessed, while it did jar loose a great many votes from an otherwise "lame" electorate, also proved, to many of us at least, that sportsmanship is at a premium in campus elections.

Propaganda to the contrary, the candidates on both sides were probably endowed with about the same ability so far as their qualifications for office were concerned, and the platforms of the Progressive and Service Parties did not differ materially, so that from an impersonal standpoint the supporters of the defeated party need not be deeply concerned about the welfare of student government.

So what? Probably that campaigning, which has become a "major" activity, has not proved itself worthy of the purpose.

A few weeks ago one of our columnists made an idealistic appeal to Hatchet readers to take advantage of the opportunity this election afforded for "clean, wholesome, mental sport, in a game that would be both entertaining and instructive. The writer supposed that 'the backbone of the nation' so-called, would or should rise above pettiness in politics.

If then, campus politics is the training ground for our future politicians, Tammany has some excellent recruits in our midst. Specifically I refer to certain "bosses", not the candidates who were, for the most part, out in the open in their campaigning.

If the students themselves can't sponsor a sane and sensible election campaign, then it is time that a little supervision is administered that would govern such matters as for example, campaign expenditures and responsibility for campaign literature that is allowed to circulate.

The ringing appeal that was made to the mature students of the University strikes some as being an insult to the intelligence with which the groups so flatteringly attributed, when viewed in the light of other tactics, such as certain misleading information that made its appearance on the eve of the election.

"A good, close campaign teaches us much about human nature and the character of fellow students," we read in "Views and Interviews" recently. At that time, no doubt, Mr. Cheatham was referring to a "clean" campaign. If he had written those words after the recent muddled affair, we might suspect Mr. Cheatham of making oblique references to campaign managers.

Aside from the election game itself, which both sides played for all it was worth, with an added measure here and there, we should in all fairness say that the candidates who were elected were well selected for their integrity and ability to manage student government, and will undoubtedly give their best to fulfill their duties on the Student Council.

The Council-elect will, it is hoped and believed, through honest and constructive effort, draw the support and good will of the losing side.

Another thing which should not go unnoticed, and then I'm through. The Liberal Party contributed a plank which both of the other parties had forgotten when they drew up their platforms (for ma-

The Progressives added the plank to their platform, thanked the Liberals, and now, thanks primarily to the latter, a G. W. magazine is at least another campaign promise.

In the Campus Eye

By Sheila

THAT moving picture camera in use during election time was operated by Verna Volz and "Chuck" Kiefer. The films, which reveal campus folk in their lighter (and brighter) moments, will be shown at the Fiesta shows next week. Of course, if you have any good reason for not wanting your picture to appear, you can get in touch with one of the directors of the Fiesta, and, for a nominal fee (so we understand) may be able to keep a secret whatever you want kept secret.

The Theta Delta had a new bar installed, recently, and grabbed the first opportunity of using it that presented itself. A radio dance at the house Saturday night was the date of its formal christening. This, dear readers, is "confidential, and not for publication."

Bob Howell decided to make hay—or something—while at the Intercollegiate Press Association Convention at the University of Delaware. He dated a different cued code for every one of the social affairs he attended, and then rode home, leaving a trail of cracked or broken hearts behind him. And more for the Broken Hearts Department—Bob's illustrious fraternity brother, Bernie Holden, went for the Delaware dames in a big way, too, but after meeting little Audrey decided it was foolish to look around any more. Don't let it bother you, Bernie—Newark isn't AWFULLY far.

David Apter and Pat McKusick, formerly friendly, are now mad at one another and don't even try to hide it. It happened thus: some time ago Davy asked Pat for a date for one of the University dances and she accepted. Came the night of the dance, with interest spectators forming a welcoming committee at the door—but did Pat and her Davy show up? They did not.

Next day Dave explained to friends that he hadn't been able to get off work to attend, and that he had thoughtlessly neglected to phone and break the date. He slid furtively about the campus for weeks, trying to avoid a meeting with the lady. Meanwhile, Pat was telling questioners that her date had just simply slipped her mind, and she hadn't even thought of it until too late to do anything about it. She tried to avoid running into Davy, for obvious reasons. Last week both learned the truth, so, as intimates before, they're mad at one another.

We've been seriously considering leaving home to live in the dorm, when it is complete, but, if recent rumors are to be trusted, we think we'll exercise our prerogative and change our mind. An unofficial report has it that the coeds who reside there will be allowed but one date a week, and that doors will close at 11 p. m. We prefer our freedom, thanks.

Fiesta Staffs Bring Plans To Completion

Dancing Will Be in Student Club, "Hall of Caricatures"

With 1936 Fiesta dates—May 14, 15, and 16—but a little more than a week off, activity in all branches of the Fiesta organization was redoubled last week.

Final arrangements for nightly dancing to the music of six Washington orchestras are being completed by Paul Brogren, Fiesta dance chairman. Dancing will be held in the Student Club, rededicated to the "Hall of Caricatures". Caricatures of 16 outstanding campus characters will form a distinctive feature of the hall's decoration.

Arrangements for three exhibitions and tournaments of ping pong champions of Washington and vicinity are being completed by the Fiesta sports staff. Present plans call for a one-hour program each night which will include two singles and one doubles matches, and probably an elimination interfraternity tournament.

Police Boy's Club boxers are expected to accept the invitation extended last week to participate in the Fiesta boxing shows. A complete card of outstanding fighters will be presented each night, with well-known athletes and sports promoters as officials.

Voting for King and Queen of the 1936 Fiesta is still being conducted through the sale of tickets to "Davy", Fiesta musical comedy. A large corps of salespeople representing a majority of campus organizations are at present conducting a campaign to sell out seats for the three performances of the show. General elections will be held May 12.

Scheduled to make a short talk before every University organization inside of two weeks, members of the Fiesta Speakers' Bureau, under George Haskell, intend making every University student "Fiesta Conscious" by presenting facts and interesting sidelights.

Arrangements for a series of radio broadcasts to present the Fiesta idea to Washingtonians will be completed this week. Music from "Davy", and a number of skits from the four editions of the Fiesta Revues and fourth Annual Fiesta Follies will be included on the program.

Pope Asks Support

Pope and Cunningham each issued statements Sunday night. Pope's statement is as follows: "We are starting now to carry out the policies which were approved by a majority of the students at the recent elections. To accomplish this, we ask the support of every person in the University. In this way we will all have a part in helping our institution."

"I am grateful for the opportunity to serve as president of the Student Council and extend my thanks to those who made this possible. I shall do my very best to serve faithfully."

Cunningham Pledges Aid

Cunningham's statement, in the form of a letter to Pope, is as follows:

"Dear Ross:

"Please accept my sincere congratulations upon your election as the president of the student body of the George Washington University."

"I know you well enough to feel sure that you will make a good one. I want to emphasize that you can count on us in the Service Club, those of us who won and those of us who lost, to cooperate with you to the fullest extent during the coming year."

"With best wishes for your continued success, I remain,

"Very truly yours,

by salespeople of campus organizations. Tickets for the Fiesta Follies will also be 40 cents, couple tickets, 75 cents, also reserved. Tickets to the Revues will be 15 cents.

Casting for the parts in "Davy" will be completed Thursday in Corcoran 30 by Karl Gay, graduate director, at the first general rehearsal of the entire cast. At the same rehearsal, chorus, and specialty numbers will be correlated with the script, and final preparations for dress rehearsals Saturday, Sunday and Monday will be completed.

Six songs written by Jack Ehrmantraut and Skippy Lieberman have been picked for the score of "Davy" and will be turned over to Joe Allen Jones' ten-piece orchestra for rehearsal tonight. Jones' orchestra was selected Saturday to play for the show.

Sets for all productions have been designed by Jerry Rosey, last week appointed general art chairman in place of Sam Walker.

Mary Fulgham and Betty Hartung, codirectors of the Fiesta dancing chorus, announced the names of their dancers last week. They are:

Director announces all rehearsals in future must be attended if girls are to be in show.

man of the Center Party. Morris Kruger was named vice-chairman; Mrs. Lilly Shepherd, secretary; and Layton McNeel, treasurer. Fred Brooks, Robert Doonan, and James Speer were named to the Executive Council for next year.

The Right Party elected Bennett Willis as temporary chairman of the proposed new "Constitutional Liberal" party. The other temporary officers named were William Gaussman, vice-chairman and Elizabeth Wahl, secretary-treasurer. Frank Brisebois, William Gaussman, and Bennett Willis will represent the party on the Executive Council for next year. Permanent officers will be elected at the party convention to be held next Friday night in Corcoran 10, at which time the party platform will also be redrafted.

The tax bill will be brought before the Union tomorrow night in Stockton Hall. The bill, which calls for a balanced budget, makes drastic increases in income taxes, provides for taxes on corporate undivided profits, and processing taxes, including the so-called "windfall tax".

by salespeople of campus organizations. Tickets for the Fiesta Follies will also be 40 cents, couple tickets, 75 cents, also reserved. Tickets to the Revues will be 15 cents.

Casting for the parts in "Davy" will be completed Thursday in Corcoran 30 by Karl Gay, graduate director, at the first general rehearsal of the entire cast. At the same rehearsal, chorus, and specialty numbers will be correlated with the script, and final preparations for dress rehearsals Saturday, Sunday and Monday will be completed.

Six songs written by Jack Ehrmantraut and Skippy Lieberman have been picked for the score of "Davy" and will be turned over to Joe Allen Jones' ten-piece orchestra for rehearsal tonight. Jones' orchestra was selected Saturday to play for the show.

Sets for all productions have been designed by Jerry Rosey, last week appointed general art chairman in place of Sam Walker.

Mary Fulgham and Betty Hartung, codirectors of the Fiesta dancing chorus, announced the names of their dancers last week. They are:

Director announces all rehearsals in future must be attended if girls are to be in show.

Larson and Bartley Hold Magazine Editors' Posts

Two Local Students Edit "Counter Views", New Publication

When an eighteen-year-old college freshman becomes managing editor of a promising magazine, he is, to say the least, in a class by himself; and Jack Larson, member of the freshman class, is doing just that.

Last week volume 1, number 1, of Counter Views, digest of diverse opinion edited by S. Claud Bartley, who attended George Washington University last semester, was published and distributed gratis. The magazine, which is about the size of The Readers' Digest, will be comprised, like that publication, of articles condensed from leading publications; however, unlike that magazine, the articles in Counter Views will be arranged so that articles setting forth opposing views on some current issue will appear side by side in the same issue. For example, the first issue contains articles favoring war and peace, articles on the Constitution, etc. The issue also contains interesting quotations from different men such as "Life is a Thought", Coleridge, "Life is an Incurable Disease", Crowley, etc.

Bartley, who graduated from Fernman Junior College, South Carolina, attended this University for three semesters, and, prior to entering upon his present venture, worked on the Washington Star. Larson came to Washington in September from Tulsa, Oklahoma, his home town. His experience in journalism was gained in the office of his father's newspaper in Tulsa.

The first regular issue of Counter Views will appear on June 1, Larson says.

Bowman Speaks To Botany Group

Dr. Paul Bowman, professor of biology, will address the 274th meeting of the Washington Botanical Society tonight at 8 o'clock in H-108. His subject will be "Remarks on the Fourth Annual Spring Wild Flower Show".

The program will also include brief notes and reviews of the black walnut toxicity and cultural preference of wild flowers, followed by an inspection of the flowers exhibited in H-101, and a social hour.

Tennis Team Plays John Hopkins and Delaware

Strive to Repeat Last Year's Triumph Over
Johns Hopkins

Tough Match Is Foreseen;
Delaware May Prove
Easier

THE G. W. tennis team will attempt to protect its one-match winning streak when it travels to Baltimore to meet the strong Johns Hopkins racketeers tomorrow, and Monday it will drive down to Delaware to play the University of Delaware.

This match means a lot to the Colonial net squad for in the past three years, the Blue and Gold have won two matches from the G. Washingtons. Last year was the first year the Buff and Blue broke through to win, and in the previous two years the victories scored over the Colonials by the Hopkins were the only losses chalked up to the locals for those two years.

Look for Tough Match

However, if the net wins of past years mean anything, the George Washington team will have a very hard time defeating the Baltimore boys. In the first place the match will be played on the Johns Hopkins courts which gives the advantage to the Jaybirds in that respect. Also, the Buff team is not experiencing a banner year, though it has won two matches and lost one. Because of his studies, Coach Barney Welsh has not been out with the team a great deal, and is not well acquainted with the material.

Lack of group practice and playing facilities has handicapped the formation of an elimination tournament via the system used nearly universally, the ladder system in which the players challenge each other in rotation, thus automatically making for the best team available. All of these factors enter in the chances for a G. W. win over the Johns Hopkins team, and only by reaching a peak will the Welshmen be able to score a victory.

Monday is expected Monday when the Colonials trip down to Delaware to play the University of Delaware. Last year the George Washington team swamped the upstarts, 8-1, and if Coach Welsh can whip his team into anywhere near their usual form, this year's team should duplicate last year's performance.

Friday the Colonials scored their

ONLY one entry from George Washington went into the last table tennis tournament of the season, the Washington Open, held at the Washington Table Tennis Courts last week, but he upheld the school by reaching the quarter-finals of the singles and, teaming up with a Tech High student, reached the finals of the doubles.

Harry Ceppos was the lone entry, but Ceppos in reaching the quarter-finals, or round of eight, eight men being left, upset the No. 2 man of Baltimore in so doing. In the quarter-finals, he came out victorious when he played Bob Lee. Lee defeated Ceppos, 14-21, 21-19, 21-16, 21-15. Lee then went on to the semi-finals where he won two games from Elias Schumann, who won the tournament in the next round against Manny Moskowitz.

In the doubles, Ceppos teamed up with Louis Gorin, of McKinley High School, and after scoring an upset in defeating the team of Lafferty-Moskowitz in the semi-finals, lost in the finals to Schumann-Lee, 21-17, 21-16, 21-19.

May Play First Base for Albany Senators

Fred Price, Colonial first baseman, shown snagging the ball at the initial sack, has been offered a contract to play with the Albany Senators, a "farm" of the Washington Baseball Club. Joe Cambria, president of the Albany Club, and Washington's manager, Bucky Harris, took a look at him last week.

Mountaineers Lose to G. W. Twice

Colonials Keep Slate Clean
With Three Victories
For Week

THE Classy Colonial Curve-clouters, swept undefeated through three more college nines last week to preserve their unbeaten record in inter-collegiate competition this season.

In the best-played game of their season to date, the Morrisemen took over Mt. St. Marys, 5-2, behind the steady, seven-hit pitching of Vinnie DeAngelis, Monday in Griffith Stadium.

Friday and Saturday afternoons were spent deluging the Mountaineers from West Virginia with base-hits to win twice, 11-4, and 14-6, with Bob Woytych and Ronald Hope coasting in behind the devastating attacks to win their third and first games of the season, respectively. Neither has yet sustained a loss, incidentally.

The two contests with West Virginia turned out to be little more than good opportunities for the Buff batters to fatten up their averages at the expense of the over-worked Mountaineer mounds-men. That they turned their opportunities to good advantage is shown by the fact that they blasted out 16 hits, including two doubles and three triples; in the first game, and 13, including a double and two homers, by Fred Price and Tim Stapleton, in the second.

The prestige of Ronald Hope, rosy-cheeked Virginia-rookie hurler, rose considerably as he went the route against the visitors, holding them to nine hits and striking out five while coasting in behind the landslide of Colonial hits.

Bob Woytych, in registering his third straight victory, passed Vinnie DeAngelis in number of innings pitched, as he has gone the route in each of his triumphs, while Vinnie has confined himself largely to relief work.

Washington Boy Plays for
Mt. St. Marys Against
George Washington

Bill Witter, the coach of the Catawba tennis team, revealed some interesting news when his team played here last week. Bill is also assistant coach of the football team and his news was apropos Cesario, who you may remember startled local fans several years ago with his brilliant playing though George Washington won. Then last year when Catawba came here to play, the fans expected to see Cesario again in all of his glory after three years of seasoning, but Cesario did not even see action. Why? was the question asked then. The reason as stated by Witter was that Cesario, after reaching a premature peak in his first year when he flashed great form against George Washington, never reached that peak again. Also, Cesario had a hard time staying in training, and after being caught smoking on the bus coming to Washington was dismissed from the squad when the team went back to Catawba. Barney Welsh and Ralph McElvenny nearly scored an upset when they took a set off Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn in the Chevy Chase Invitation doubles last week. It looks like Fred Price is headed for great things if he accepts that contract offered him by Albany. Tommy Johnson who played right field for Mt. St. Mary against George Washington is a Washington boy having played baseball for Tech High School. Horne's triple against the Mounts nearly hit, the left centerfield bleachers. Vinnie DeAngelis is reverting back to the days when knight-hood was in flower and the knights wore the colors of their ladies.

Albany Club Offers Price Contract

Star Colonial First Sacker
Recognized for Brilliant
Play

REACHING the climax of a short career as a George Washington baseball player, Fred Price, star first baseman, has been offered a contract by the Albany team of the International Association in recognition of his brilliant playing here, according to no less an authority than Fred, himself.

After watching Fred play in several games, Joe Cambria, president of the Albany club together with Bucky Harris, Washington manager, approached Price and tendered him a contract. Fred did not commit himself, but sent the contract to his folks in New York to look over. He intends to go home as soon as possible to talk it over, but will not sign until he has fully deliberated, for the very act of signing a contract means that he will automatically be barred from playing any longer with the Colonials.

The tall first sacker, who looks like an Adonis in uniform, is only 18 years old and is in his first year here. He is batting .333. Over six feet tall and weighing around 180 pounds, Price seems to have a great chance to make good if he goes with Albany. Of course he needs seasoning, but he is young, and should make the grade in several years. As Albany is a farm for Washington, it would not be surprising at all to see Fred playing for the Senators in four or five years.

Morrisemen Play Two Games

Diamonders Seek Revenge
From Wake Forest and
Elon Christians

Travel to Repeat Win Over
Mt. St. Marys in Baltimore

"BOYOHBOY! Wait'll we meet those boys from Wake Forest! Are we going to plaster them!"

That's the sentiment in the camp of the Colonial Curve-clouters, from Coach Ed Morris all the way through the squad to Clark Swayze, manager and ball-chaser extraordinary, as they prep for their game, tomorrow, with the Demon Deacons, on the West Ellipse at 3.

The Deacons handed the Morrisemen two pastings last year: one by the humiliating score of 14-5, the other, 5-1. Coach Morris and the boys themselves, are confident they are the team that can give the Deacons, who are rated the best in the Carolinas, a thorough going-over in revenge.

After the Wake Forest setto, the Buffmen are due to skip town to play the diamonders of Mt. St. Marys a return game on their home grounds, in Baltimore. This time they are hopeful of increasing the three-run margin by which they knocked off the Mountmen last Monday.

Next Monday they return to town to engage the Fighting Christians of Elon on the Ellipse, probably the Western one. They have an old score to settle with the Christians, too. They inflicted a seven to nothing shutout on the Morrisemen last year, and revenge is to be the order of the afternoon—a big way.

For the Wake Forest tilt, Coach Morris will have Vinnie DeAngelis, Bill Lanier and possibly Bob Woytych ready to pitch, with Lanier the probable choice.

Two Games Saturday

Two games are scheduled in the Intramural Baseball League for Saturday—Engineers vs. Law School and the Med. School vs. Pharmacy.

Last Saturday the Law Schoolers defeated the Med. School nine, 8-7, by staging a last-inning five-run rally. A triple by Fleming was the "big blow" of the Law School's winning rally.

Grid Grad No. 2

Henry Vonder Bruegge, End, Was Also Captain of Swim Team

GRID grad No. 2 played perhaps his best game in the last contest of his career... against North Dakota when he was brilliant on the defense despite the mud... you guessed it, he is Henry Vonder Bruegge, but goes by the names of Hank and Vondy.

Hank came to George Washington in Sep. 1932, and enrolled in the School of Engineering. Engineering was right hard, so Hank played no other sport but freshman football that year and devoted himself to his studies. The next year, he earned a varsity letter in football, while substituting for Bill Parrish. The same year Vondy played that sport jokingly called intra-mural basketball but which is everything but basketball. His team was the Bone-crushers.

The next year Vonder Bruegge played football again and won his letter. Because the pressure of studies was easing up a little, Hank expanded his activities and went out of the swimming team where he proved to be a success, for he was elected captain of the mermen at the end of the season. Played intramural baseball with the Engineers and was awarded all-intramural rightfielding post.

Surprised himself in May by coming out third in a D. C. college horseshoe tournament. Couldn't do as well in table tennis as Lee Penlon will tell you.

Last season Vondy again played football, led the swimming team, and was one of the five leading

Eligible for Frat
Competition

SUNDAY'S games in the Interfraternity Council's baseball loop resulted in no major shift in the standings of either league, Delta Tau Delta holding the first position in League A by defeating Theta Delta Chi, 6-3, while Phi Sigma Kappa tightened its hold on first place in League B by running up an 18-3 score against Sigma Nu.

Protest against the use of "Tuffy" Leemans, D. T. D. mound ace, and P. Parrish, a team mate, were believed to have been finally cleared up Sunday when the two were declared eligible. This removes any doubt as to the legality of D. T. D.'s first two victories, as the beaten teams had based their protest on the alleged ineligibility of these two men.

Best Game of Day
The D. T. D.-T. D. X. match produced the day's best game in League A, as in the other games in that league Kappa Sigma had little difficulty in defeating T. U. O., 11-6, and K. A. ran up a 17-2 victory over Tau Kappa Epsilon. Wade Skinner pitched two hit ball for Kappa Alpha and struck out ten men.

Phi Sigs' Hal Kiesel pitched three hit ball while his team mates were pounding three Sigma Nu hurlers for 17 hits and in addition working them for five walks.

Tex Britt and Jimmy Edmunds hit homers for the victors.

The only machine of its kind

500 camshafts can be inspected every hour by an automatic machine which has been designed and built by the Ford Motor Company. It is the only one of its kind. It has a gaging accuracy of one ten-thousandth of an inch.

It gages Ford camshafts at 25 points. Any dimension not within the specified limits causes electrical and mechanical devices to reject the camshaft as it leaves the machine.

There are ten inspection stations. The camshafts are placed in registered position in carriers mounted on an endless linked conveyor and carried into the machine. At each station the conveyor stops momentarily. Automatic centers engage the ends of the camshafts and hold them rigidly. Then 25 floating gage heads lower automatically, measure the shafts, then rise. As the conveyor moves the shafts to the next station, other mechanism rotates and indexes them for the next set of gage heads.

The gage heads contain hard-alloy-tipped measuring plungers which are linked to amplifying levers. Variations in shaft sizes, beyond set limits, close a set of contact points which operate two solenoids. One sets the rejection mechanism; the other raises a marking plunger which puts a daub of copper sulphate solution on the shaft where the dimension is over or under size.

When shafts come out of machine they are automatically passed or rejected. All told, there are 54 inspections on every Ford V-8 camshaft.

"TURRET TOP, NO DRAFT VENTILATION, KNEE-ACTION, HYDRAULIC BRAKES AND THAT GAL! WHAT MORE COULD YOU WANT IN A CAR?"

You may be satisfied, but General Motors is going to keep right on trying to bear its share of this combination. That's the fortunate advantage of having the vast resources to keep on pioneering—and a demand for its cars vast enough to enable the production of new things at a price that fits the average pocketbook.

Morris Expounds On Line-Up Says Batting Averages Make Batting Order Look Okay

"WELL, sir, looks as if those figures make our batting order look just about right, don't they?" exclaimed Coach Ed Morris, referring to the batting averages of the varsity diamondites.

"I just figured them out, for my own information; for the games up through the Mt. St. Mary's affair, Monday, leaving out the opener with Ohio State because that wasn't in the same score-book."

He continued, "Of the regulars, Steve Walker, the catcher, is leading with a mark in the four hundreds. Then come Andy Horne and 'Lefty' Johnson. Then Stapleton and Price and Berg, with Williams and Webb about together on the end."

"Checking the averages with the lineup, there is Burt Webb, the lead-off man. He's hitting .286, which is only fair, you might say. Look, though, at the runs he has carried across. Only 'Trader' Horne surpasses him, although Andy is hitting an even forty points higher. And don't forget that Burt is smart at chiseling walks off opposing pitchers. They don't show in the statistics, but he has plenty."

Runs Bases Well
"But the big reason why Webb can continue to bat lead-off for me is the way he runs those bases. He doesn't have to wait for a hit or infield out to get over to second—in scoring position."

Why, in the last three games, alone, he has stolen ten bases. That's an average at over three per game, which means that every time he gets on he steals at least one base. Maybe you think a base-runner like that doesn't give the opposing pitchers and catchers—the whole opposing team in fact, the jitters!

Then, next comes Andy Horne, who has a nice 328 stick mark on the stat book. And, take a look at what's included in those 15 hits; he has banded out—two doubles, two triples, and a homerun! Those are the kind of hits that bring in the scores, besides advancing the runners.

"Lefty" Johnson's coming along too, smacking out 18 hits to give himself a .346 average. He's just the man to have in the third place, to keep those runners moving around. He's the fastest man on the club, too, and can steal those bases almost as well as Webb. He, too, has been specializing in extra-base hitting—three doubles and a couple of triples.

To Stay in Fourth Notch
"Yes, indeed, Fred Price is going to stay clean-up hitter. He's been hitting 'em right along in the pinches and getting those runners across. Besides he's only 18, the youngest boy on the team, and hitting a sharp .333 pace, including three doubles and a homer, he is going to stay right where he is as long as he keeps it up.

"Yes, Tim's fallen off a bit, to .259, but he is probably the coolest waiter on the team. He gets on base very frequently on walks he coaxes from opposing pitchers. You notice that, in spite of his batting average, the number of runs he has carried across personally is the third highest on the team. With his ability to get those walks, he doesn't have to be a slugger—though I'm sure he'll end up with a higher mark than .250."

Berg's Going Great
"Berg has been going great, both at bat and in the field; the last few games. He'll boost that .260 way up if he keeps it up—at that he stands next to Stapleton in the matter of runs carried over the plate."

"Williams is only eight points out of being a .300 hitter, and for a person of his size, has been getting fine distance. He's a hard one to pitch to, in the bargain. 'Move Walker up? No, he fits right into the picture, there at the lower end of the batting order. Why? Well, for a number of reasons."

"First, that way we don't have to change the batting order when Stamms catches, as we would if I had Walker batting farther up. Incidentally, I intend to use Stamms more in the future."

"Secondly, although he is the best hitter on the team at present (Steve's hitting .350), Steve is not nearly as fast as most of the other men. He can't steal bases very often. Therefore, I use the pitcher to sacrifice Steve along whenever he gets on base. That way I get Steve into scoring position when the heavy hitters are coming up, and I also save my pitchers the wear and tear of running bases by letting them sacrifice out. That way their effectiveness on the mound is preserved."

"Now, we've played about half-way through the schedule now, and we've beaten every college team we've met. The figures show this lineup is right and, what's more, it's gotten the results."

"I'm going to leave it alone." Coach Morris concluded.
